#FARMARTACK - A farmer and his son managed to thwart a farm attack when two armed men driving a tractor arrived on their property this week. Police have arrested an alleged farm attacker and recovered an unlicensed firearm in the Phuthaditjhaba district this week. Free State SAPS spokesperson, Warrant Officer Mmako Mophiring, said that the farm attack suspect had confronted a farmer and his son with a firearm. He said the farmer had managed to disarm the suspect but he had managed to flee the scene of the crime. Mophiring said that the farmer's son was on the farm, Ande Vrede Farm, in the Phuthaditjhaba district, together with his father when the suspect arrived with another unknown man. "They were requested by the father to leave, but the suspect engaged in a physical confrontation with both the father and his son. It is further alleged that he took out a firearm and fired a shot, Mophiring said.

#FARMATTACK – Attackers posed as police investigators and in that manner gained access via the main gate of a smallholding. The unmarked police car had "B" registration plates. There was a police weapon on the front of one attacker's golf shirt and the words Task Team on the back. He had a case docket in his hand. They insisted that everyone be called together. They asked where the domestic worker was that was involved in a previous robbery. She was in the squatter camp 4kms away. They demanded that the owner's wife living in the main house also join them. The attacker suddenly grabbed the man from the back in a chokehold and he lost consciousness. At the main house, the domestic worker informed the woman that the SAPS wanted to talk to her. Her daughter had just got out of the shower and told her mother that there were two men in her room. One man pulled out a gun and forced her to her knees. The domestic worker was madeto lie down on the floor and was then tied up. The woman gave them the code to the small safe and they found the bigger safe's key inside. They stole a small revolver, a semi-automatic assault weapon, jewellery and cash. They wanted the code to a third safe but she told them only her husband knew the code. They slapped her so hard that her tooth cut her lip. One attacker pressed his hand in front of her pants and said he would rape her without a condom. Then he threatened to shoot her daughter in front of her. The owner suspected mischief when no one answered their phones. He then saw what was going on when he opened the security cameras on his phone and activated the alarm. The assailants fled.
